A neglected cough can lead to a lot of trouble. But if you use Adamson's Balsam the first thing—there's no danger.

The first dose relaxes strained throat muscles, breaks up, and expels phlegm and heals irritated membrane. That stops the coughing. Other ingredients, acting through the blood attack the germs at the seat of trouble and in a day or two all danger is gone. Adamson's Balsam con-

NORWAY VICINITY

Dear Reader:
These few lines are set in type for a special reason.
Had a local merchant used a little more advertising space, we would not have had to use them.
Had one of our women murdered her husband, run off with the money, had twins, or sent us some neighborhood news, everything would have been all right.
In fact, we don't care whether you read this item or not.
Something had to go into "his space," and this is it.
We don't think much of it ourselves—but who wants to see white space?
THE EDITOR.

ICE CREAM HISTORY

Each man, woman and child in New England eats, according to figures which show that the annual consumption in the New England section is 15 million gallons annually. That's a lot of ice cream.
We have been eating ice cream for over 500 years it seems. In 1235, according to a legend, a Roman shepherd boy travelling through the snow covered mountains of Italy, discovered that the milk provisions which he carried in a goat skin bag upon his back had been frozen to the consistency of custard while being subjected to churning movements as he tramped along the trail. This frozen mess, we are assured by an eminent authority, was the original ice cream.
It is next found of being served to Catherine de Medici, Queen of Henry II, in 1547. Napoleon and Empress Josephine enjoyed many a plate of ice. Mrs. Alexander Hamilton served ice cream at a dinner attended by George Washington and with Dolly Madison is credited with the introduction of frozen desserts in America.
Ice cream sodas evidently originated at the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition in 1876. Ice cream cones were first seen at the World's Fair in Chicago in 1893.
A new mechanical testing device has been invented by scientists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture that removes the hulls from rough rice and shows the hardness or milling quality as well as yield that can be obtained by milling the rough rice.
If sweet clover is planted in winter, unscarified or unrolled seeds may be used. The action of moisture and frost breaks the seed coat and the seed is ready to sprout with the first warm weather.
Many a man who gave marriage serious thought is still in the bachelor class.

Artist Born In Greenwood

Pictures by Atherton Furlong Are On Exhibition in Boston
From the Boston Transcript, February 2.
Atherton Furlong died in 1919, but he was as the greatest oratorical tenor of his day than as a painter. And yet, even in his brush he was a master. His pictures were honored with a "Certificate of Merit" in 1900 at Metropolitan Museum, and an animal painting of his, "Jerry," a prize bull, was purchased by the old Shaws Gallery of New York in the late eighties for $15,000, an enormous sum for the work of a living painter.
Boston knew Furlong well, knew him in his youth as a struggling young singer, knew him in his age as a successful musician, writer and artist.

This week there opened here a memorial exhibition of his work, and it is through the exhibition the tea and reception of the first day was reported to have been the largest of the season at the Casson Galleries on Boylston Street. The exhibition is sponsored by the son of the artist, Colonel Charles W. Furlong, himself a painter and lecturer.

The exhibition contains twenty-three landscape studies, all belonging to the later period of the painter's work, and executed for the most part in Maine.

Self-Taught
In art, as in his musical career, it is said that Mr. Furlong received no formal education, although in the thoroughness of his work and reception of the school of his time. In landscape he worked mostly in the subdued tones, which invariably tended either to gray or blue. His work had poetic appeal, and it was in life better known as a painter of animals than landscape. But in later life he turned more and more to the latter, and it is of these latter works that the memorial show is composed. Two of the most interesting landscapes now shown are "Misty Morning" and "Gray Dawn," both works done from the latter side of the artist's career. The artist's handling of the subjects is particularly able. In the lower golden range, "Wing Sweep" of which I have written above, is a canvas of strong appeal.

Furlong laid his paint on heavy, often working with a palette knife. The inevitable has happened, the ten years since his death has seen the color fade and richen.

A Son's Tribute
In an introductory to the exhibition catalog, the artist son says: "Atherton Furlong, painter, musician and teacher, was born in Greenwood, Maine, in 1872. Scenes of forest, sky and farm life about him inspired his paintings; the birds he whispered poems that stirred his soul; the winds seemed to sweep the great land of the forest away, and he was left alone, certain through which he 'listened to the heart of nature and heard it beat.'"

"Boston knew him in the early days of his career when, at twenty-two, he became a member of the Academy of Arts, and also assumed the modest duties of a member of the Park Street Church during the pastorate of Rev. W. H. Murray. Among those who under his instruction were Lillian Newell, Novelist and Anna Lewis, Chief of the America's most noted church singers."

"He soon developed one of the most remarkable lyric tones of the day, with the result that he was called to sing and where he became the leading attraction at tenor. Besides in his own famous solo, his voice was heard at the Sacred Harmonic Society in London, the oldest musical society in the world, some time at Royal Albert Hall and at Buckingham Palace in the Royal State Concert, when his voice blended with that of the immortal Patti. Mme. Patti with Mrs. Rogers, Sanley and Mme. Allard were among his closest friends. His career in England was marked with all possible honors."

Getting Up Nights Is Nature's Danger Signal

Rev. W. H. Mitchell, Jeffersonville, Ohio, says, "I feel I am doing real missionary work when I tell or write how my wife was relieved of a serious case of bladder irritation with Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula). She had to get up 6 to 8 times each night. It acts on bladder as opposed to salts on bowels. Drives out foreign deposits and lessens excessive acidity. This relieves the irritation that causes getting up nights. The tablets cost 2c each at L. V. Ashton's."
